

FOUND A BABY SQUIRREL?

Call your local wildlife hospital if:

- it has been in a cat or dog's mouth
- there is a deceased parent nearby
- it is covered in fly eggs or maggots
- it is bleeding or has a broken bone

No/Little Fur

Attempt to re-nest. Place baby on a towel near where you found it. Play baby squirrel distress call video on YouTube. Wait 2-3 hours for mom to return. If she does not, contact a wildlife hospital.

Fluffed Out Fur

Leave it where it is. It's old enough to survive on its own.

White Nails = Rat

Don't mistake a baby rat for a squirrel. If the baby you found has white nails, this is a rat.

Contact your local rat rescue for assistance.
